25 March 2020

Dear Sling Aircraft owner,

ARRANGEMENTS DURING THE COVID-19 LOCKDOWN PERIOD SLING PRODUCTION

After the announcement in South Africa by President Ramaphosa last night, that the country will be in lockdown from midnight 26 March 2020 to midnight 16 April 2020, Sling Aircraft will be closing its offices as directed by the President. Although the lockdown is for 21 days, there are only 13 work days during this period, and this will only affect production staff. Arrangements have been made for administrative, engineering, sales, marketing, IT and management to continue working as much as possible from home.

This will unfortunately cause some delays to expected delivery dates, however we are minimising the delays by working additional overtime hours on return, and all Saturdays full days until we have managed to catch up the production time lost.

Sling Aircraft is in the lucky position now to be able to continue to pay our staff through extended periods of shut down, as the business is doing well, is in a positive cash flow position and is making money.

Please rest assured that we will do everything in our power to catch up lost time as quickly as possible, and that there is no risk financially to the business for the foreseeable future. Our attitude is that although this is a major knock to the entire world, we are excited and motivated to come back after the shutdown with energy and determination.

I would ask that each and every one of you abide by the lockdown instructions, issued by the Governments around the world. Stay safe and maintain personal hygiene at every opportunity you have. I wish you good health during these troubling times and look forward to being back in full force on the 17th of April

Kind regards
